Barry's £20m proposal is unveiled

The Vale Council has submitted a bid for support from the Welsh Government to regeneration continue its programme beyond March 2014.

Details were unveiled this week for a further three years of investment from the Welsh Government which, if accepted, could be worth up to £20m for the town.

Bryneithin could be health centre site plans for the Dinas Powys Health Centre development, I feel that it is well thought out.

The only problem, and an important one, is the proposed position at the top of the Murch on the old school site.

Many patients using the DP Health Centre suffer from severe mobility problems, and would, therefore, be unable to access the site if it is re-positioned at the top of the hill.

A council official has suggested taxis, but most patients are unable to afford this luxury and not all patients are car

With the Bryneithin site being on a through-route, there would be easier access for all if DP health centre were to re-locate to this site.

There is also a limited bus service, which I am sure could be improved.

Let the council consider this option - before it is too late! Ieff Webber. Dinas Powys.

Scared by a horse in field reply to the letter in the July 11 issue of The GEM, regarding the trampled dog in Beach Road fields, Llantwit Major.

A few weeks ago, I was visiting Llantwit Major and was strolling quietly through a field with my calm cocker spaniel beside me, when I noticed a large horse ahead and a smaller horse.

The large horse, despite being some distance away had a look about it that worried me, skittish might be the right word.

I immediately put my dog on a lead and paused as I was worried. At that point, the horse gave us a wild look, before charging towards us at full gallop, and narrowly missed me and my dog (who was scared but did not bark).

Quite frankly, I was scared for my life, as the horse then turned behind me and looked as if it would take a second run

I rapidly headed to the side of the field to get out of the way, in case he charged me again.

I had to climb over a ate with my dog, to exit the field as fast as I could. My view after this frightening event was that the horse had an unstable temperament and should not be in a field near a heavily-used footpath. Lindi Rich,

'Protective' road measures

THE Vale of Glamorgan Council placed a notice in The GEM that it has been deemed necessary to close the westerly access road to Cardiff Airport, in order to reduce the danger of injury or damage due to terrorism.

This protective action will be taken at 6.01pm on July 30 and may remain in effect for 18

Fortunately, it seems terrorists are not interested in attacking the easterly access road from Port Road, so that will remain open.

Thank goodness for that! Branwen Sloper, Cowbridge.

'Difficult for whom?'

... so writes Andrew RT Davies AM (Readers' Letters, The GEM, July 18), but I suspect that his "difficult financial circumstances are not quite as desperate as the millions of those unemployed, job seeking, or living at subsistence level.

He blames 13 years of Labour government. Perhaps he has forgotten that this was NEW Labour, as invented by Mr Blair and his spin doctors, who were quite willing to carry on the Thatcherite ideology and fiscal policy.

respond to yet another anti-EU rant from DJ Radford (The GEM, July 18).

Of course, there is a majority for an in/out referendum and I suspect that if the vote was taken, there would be a majority wishing to leave.

This is not surprising, when UK voters are subjected to a constant stream of misleading bile in the majority of the UK press.

I constantly ask, and I challenge Mr Radford, or any other europhobe who feels like him, to describe what the future would look like if we left the EU.

Let us see their vision of Nirvana outside the EU; let them describe our future trading relationships with the rest of Barry.

WOULD like to the world; let them say how they will maintain a trading relationship with the rest of the EU when we have so publicly abused and insulted

> At whatever level this debate is conducted. I've never yet seen anything in writing from europhobes which describes exactly what we would do after we left.

If anyone believes that leaving the largest trading structure in the world would be penaltyfree, they are living in cloud-cuckoo land.

So please, all you europhobes, you have all the answers why we should leave.

Now let's have your detailed plans for the golden future that leaving Europe will bring.

WHO REAPS THE BENEFIT?

OU have to admire MP Alun Cairns front to lecture us on a 'something for nothing' culture.

The benefits cap will affect very few people in his constituency, so why does he devote his latest GEM column to it? Could it be that he

It's about time MPs started to lead by example, and practice what they preach to the rest of us.
But don't hold your breath.

By the way, Mr Editor, please keep the read-ers' page open for ordinary folk, and let the politicians pay for their own advertisement space to peddle their party dogma and mud-slinging. They'll probably claim it on expenses, Tony Robinson

'CLEAN UP THESE AREAS'

RCHER Road children's playground and Barry Island station approach (Maslin Park side) are both in need of cleaning.

A council department needs to take responsibilifor the station approach.

There is broken glass on the path, and copious amounts of dog faeces; also no waste bins on its entire length. In addition, two of the new floodlights are not working. I can't see the point in the Vale Council spending all that money on the area last year and then letting it go to ruin. Mike Dunn, Barry

Cemetery care

HROUGH your columns, we would like to thank the Cowbridge with Llanblethian Town Council, Mr David Lewis and, more recently and especially, Mr Billy James, for the care and attention given to the upkeep and maintenance of the town cemetery.

The colourful tubs and hanging baskets of flowers at the entrance, further tubs inside, the borders and the flowers beneath the trees make the cemetery a beautiful place to visit or pass by. We and many others

Neglected seat with a view...

HERE are some splen-did views in the Vale of Glamorgan, and one relatively hidden gem is at Beauville Lane, at the end of Twyncyn, Dinas Powvs.

Approximately halfway along, before entering the heavily-wooded section, on the left is a single public bench.

From this, and through the wire fence, one has a magnificent view over sloping fields to Barry, the Bristol Channel and the far English shore.

Neil's ride from Paris to Rome for Sarcoma UK

REPORT by TIM CHAPMAN

A man from Rhoose has cycled all the way from Paris to Rome - to raise funds for Neil John (36,) who works as the senior stage technician at St David's Hall, was diagnosed with fibrosarcoma in August 2009.

He underwent a successful operation and this year decided to support other people who are suffering from the disease, by making the marathon cycle ride. At the time of his diagnosis four years ago, Neil was fearful he would not be able to hold his daughter Elinor, who was born in January 2010.

Fortunately, those fears were unfounded and he is looking forward to getting the 'all clear' after five years have elapsed since his operation.

Neil's wife Jo told The GEM: "Neil and the team of cyclists made it to the Colosseum in Rome finishing together.

"They cycled through the full range of weather conditions, including snow, thunderstorms, and hail. "Neil also encountered some friendly locals, who jested that he was too fat to go up the mountains.

"He soon showed them! In total, the group cycled just over 1,100 miles in 11 days, a few extra miles than planned as they had to do some re-routing due to some road closures."

Jo added: "We'd like to say a big thank you to all of you at the GEM for your continued support of porting, go to www.sarcoma.org.uk

The Margaret Alexander Community Centre opens

THE Mayor of the Vale officially opened the new Margaret Alexander Community Centre, formerly known as Alexandra Gardens on July 11.

It was renamed in memory of former Vale Council leader: Coun Margaret Alexander, who sadly passed away last year.

The centre received 25 per cent funding from a Barry Regeneration Grant and the remainder from the Vale Council. The Alexandra Gardens Community Centre started life as a former World War II hut, and was relocated to its current position from the Buttrills fields area, circa 1947, by local community volunteers.

The centre was well used until the end of September 2011, when it was forced to close.

An independent struc-tural survey confirmed it was structurally unsound, with a high risk of collapse.

The community centre has always been run by local volunteers and many of the former offi-cers of Alexandra Community Association were present at the official opening.

WEYCOCK CROSS

Protest meeting

Local MP Alun Cairns addresses the packed meeting held at Cwm Talwg Community Hall.

The Weycock sites that appear under con-sideration are Walters Farm to the north of the roundabout and the site to the south-west of the roundabout.

Coun Probert
explained: "For residents' information the situation with these pro-posed new developments is that no plan-ning applications have been received, but preapplication enquiries and scoping enquiries about environmental impact assessments have been made.

"Both sites are outside the settlement boundary, and would be contrary to the current Unitary Development Plan (UPD), which still has to be considered until a new Local Development Plan (LDP) is agreed. "Welsh Government Policy also has a pre-sumption against build-ing in the countryside – that is outside the settlement boundary.

"The Labour-led council is still commit-ted to opposing develop-ments outside of the current settlement boundary.

"Illtyd councillors share residents' concerns about traffic congestion and have made strong representations about the possibility of develop-ments at Weycock

She insisted: "If a planning application is made, representations will be made again to the planning department by Illtyd councillors.

The proposals to allow developments at Weycock Cross are part of the reasons why the Labour-led Vale Council rejected the previous ocal Development Plan.

"The new LDP will aim to provide necessary road infrastructure and community facilities before housing develop-ments go ahead, and to ensure developments are based on sound evi-dence. The Labour-led

Council is anxious to retain the existing settle-ment boundary for Barry to prevent spreading development

"Detailed information about the new LDP and consultation opportunities will be announced in the autumn, and we will let residents know as soon as it is available," she added.

Coun Ian Johnson said he hoped that when the LDP was produced, developers would respect its findings. "The meeting also heard from people involved in other campaigns against overdevelopment of sites in the Vale, such as that at the Brynhill Golf Club, who were able to provide good advice as to how to make those concerns known to the developer and to the planning committee.

"With the revised LDP proposals being published later this year, many residents were questioning whether the developers were pushing ahead with plans ahead

"As a matter of good faith, the developers should hold back from submitting proposals until the new LDP is published and respect the LDP's findings as to whether or not Weycock Cross should be a candidate site. The Friends of Weycock Cross campaign can be contacted by email at: contact@friendsofwey contact@friendsofwey-cockcross.co.uk; Facebook: Friends of Weycock Cross; or go to the website: www.friendsofwevcockcross.co.uk.

Fundraiser is a sellout ...and Rhoose has another on the way

hosted its annual Barrian Cup competition at the St Francis Millennium Centre.

Now in its 18th year, this event attracts clubs from south Wales and the south-west of England, being as popular and highly regarded as when it was first established.

Indeed, it is the highlight of the Barry Camera Club calendar. Many thanks go to Mike Lewis for organising the event once again.

It was opened by Coun Claire Curtis, Mayor of Barry town, who later presented the Barrian Cup to the winning club, Inn Focus, whose five images dropped only four points, totalling 96 out of a total of 100.

Coun Curtis also presented the Daye

Coun Curtis also presented the Dave Cowdrey Trophy, for the best land-scape/seascape photo in the competition, which was also won by Inn

This year's distinguished judge, Brian Swinyard, delivered his results, courtesy of his good friend and fellow

BARRY Camera Club recently photographer Bob Train and former chairman of Gloucester Camera Club.

Bob did an excellent job of relaying Brian's assessment and in addition some of his own comments. With all of the work being of a high standard, errors and criticisms were few and far between.

Coun Curtis later perused all the entries and was impressed at the quali-ty of the work on display. Barry Camera Club appreciated her attendance and the grant which Barry Town Council awarded the club, which is crucial in enabling us to mount this much-loved competition annually.

ERCHIEFS AT THE READY, AS DSTONE LEAVERS SAY FAREWELL

HANDKERCHIEFS were at the ready at Gladstone Primary - as the year-6 children performed their leavers' concert in front of parents and families.

The children sang, acted and reminisced about their special memories from Gladstone. Some of the children were presented with trophies and all of them received a special Leaver' Book packed full of photos and memories, paid for by the Gladstone PTA.

Later that day, celebrations continued with a year-6 cocktail party held in the school grounds followed by the Leavers' disco. Year-6 teachers, Helen Reilly and Paula Graham said: "We would like to say a huge goodbye and thank you to all our year-6 children.

"We wish you all the best in your new schools, but don't forget to leave a little piece of Gladstone in your hearts."

Heartfelt tributes to Vale victims, and an old friend that I have to begin this column by referring to the recent tragic events that have occurred over the last month, includthe tragic ing drowning of young Hollie McClymont, and also those who have died as a result of road traffic accidents.

I send my sincere condolences to the families and friends of those who are no longer with

I think it would also be pertinent to refer to the very hot weather that we have been experienc-ing and ask everyone to vigilant and keep a tchful eve on the watchful eye on the young and old within our community - particularly babies, the frail elderly and those who suffer from chest conditions; and ensure that no-one becomes dehydrated in the extreme conditions.

I think we all become concerned during the winter months, but this hot weather can have consequences,

Well done!

On a positive note, I would like to congratulate Oak Field School in Gibbonsdown, on their tremendous efforts in being taken out of Estyn special measures.

Town campaign

Previously, I commented on the issues facing Barry Town FC supporters' efforts to get their newly-formed Barry Town United AFC team registered with the Football Association for Wales (FAW).

It is regrettable that the FAW have refused them entry into the Welsh League, thereby stopping league football being played at Jenner Park. I know the supporters are considering taking legal action against the FAW and I wish them success.

Despite this setback, the new team is scheduled to play a Cardiff City Football team this Saturday, July 27 at Jenner Park ,and are hoping for a good turnout.
They intend making it a fun family day and are looking to include some extra facilities on the day and help fund-raise for their campaign. I hope they have a great game and a successful family day.

Fitting

I recently had the great-est pleasure of being part of the opening of the newly-rebuilt community centre in the Buttrills ward which has been fittingly dedicated to the late Buttrills councillor, Margaret Alexander and

named the 'Margaret Alexander Community 'Margaret Centre'

Margaret and I were very good friends, and we worked together as a team for many years, particularly when she was the last Labour Leader of the council and I was her deputy, from December 2006 until May 2008.

Margaret was a stal-wart and always worked hard for the council, and particularly for her ward, Buttrills. It was through her tenacity, insistence and determination that the new community centre was rebuilt, after the old one was declared unsafe and had to be demolished.

The centre is a fitting memory to my old friend, who is missed so very much by so many people.

I would, therefore, like to thank the community centre's committee for making this decision, and also thank them for inviting me to open the new centre. I wish them much success for the future.

Consultation

Work at the council also continues and as a cabinet, we will begin a consultation in September on the proposal to create a co-educational secondary school in Barry by combining the current single sex Bryn Hafren and Barry comprehensive schools into a single mixed-sex school on the two sites. We believe this is the correct solution and will be consistent with other secondary schools in the county, but want to know your views before taking a decision.

This follows on from the decision to bring forward the development of Llantwit Major secondary school by two years, and to build it in one phase. It is intended that the work will commence in spring of 2015.

Audacity!

I WOULD like to end this column by once again decrying the comments of our local MP, who seems to be happy to comment on council and Welsh Government issues, but declines to comment on the actions being taken by his own Con/Dem Westminster Government – who have imposed, and continue to impose – such unac-ceptable welfare reforms on the most vulnerable in our communities.

This is adding to the burden on local governprepared to accept that it is 'his' Westminster Government that has made these savage cuts to the public sector and reduced the grants available to the Welsh Government.

He also has the audac-ity to blame the Welsh Government for not allocating the Vale Government allocating the vanc Council enough money, at Local when at Local Government Reorganisation in 1994, it was the Conservative Government and Welsh Minister of the day that decided how much money should be allocated to the Vale when South Glamorgan was disbanded. Once again, our MP makes comments that are wildly inaccurate. I think he should start to deal with Westminster issues, burden the blame for his Government's action, and leave the Vale Council to do its job in looking after the people of the Vale, which is clearly not on his agen-

• I wish everyone an enjoyable but safe time in the coming month and hope the weather allows all of us to enjoy the summer break.

Look out for all the good summer activities that the council is put-ting on at Barry Island and around the Vale.

Council links up with Stonewall to counter homophobic bullying in schools

THE Vale Council has joined up with Stonewall Cymru to tackle homophobic bullying in schools.

The council has joined the charity's 'Education Champions' pro-gramme, which offers staff in Vale schools access to specialist support and advice on how to address homophobic bullying in primary and secondary schools.

An initial training session for schools is planned for October. Schools who are interested in developing this work further can join Stonewall's School Champions pro-

The cabinet member for children's services, Coun Chris Elmore, said: "Through the Vale's collaboration with Stonewall Cymru, schools will be supported their work to reduce homophobic bullying.

"I want to send a clear message to all young people across the Vale that if they feel they are subject to homophobic, or any other form of bullying, the council is doing all it can to stop the bullying and provide support to victims.

"By celebrating difference and challenging prejudice, work to promote anti-bullying can make classrooms happier and more welcoming places to learn."

Bryneithin consultation

THE Vale Council is inviting residents to air their views on the future of the Bryneithin site, as part of a public consultation.

The council's priority is to identify a future use for the site that continues to help meet the needs of older people

The Bryneithin working group has identified what are believed to be the most viable options for the site – either a residential development for older people, or a care facility for older people.

However, while these options appear to be the most viable, the council welcomes residents' ideas and wishes to gain as many suggestions for the future of the site as possi-ble to assist in meeting the needs of older people in the Vale.

Two questions are being asked during the consultation:

1. What are your views on the Vale Council's plan to ensure the site will continue to help meet the needs of older people living in the Vale?

2. How do you feel the site could be used to meet the needs of older people living in the Vale?

The consultation period will last until September 13.

Residents can respond online at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk/consultation, via the CIV contact centre or by writing to: Bryneithin Consultation, Corporate and Customer Services, Vale of Glamorgan Council, FREEPOST SWC2936, Barry, CF63 4GZ.

Graham's cycle challenge sets bar high!

EVERY year, The GEM receives reports of local people taking on charity challenges – and the bar is constantly being raised as people look for something that will stand out.

So, when we carried a report recently of Llancarfan's Graham Brain, and his marathon cycling tour of Britain, it took a while for the scale of his achievement to sink in.

After all, cycling challenges are quite common, and tend to attract fairly fit men and women – often keen cyclists who are at home on a bike.

You might not be Chris Froome or Sir Bradley Wiggins, but it is no place for Norm from Cheers!

So, just what posa 60-year-old sessed man – whose weight had crept up past the 21 stone mark – to contemplate a John O'Groats to Land's End cycle.

Was Graham a keen cyclist in his past? No.

In fact, his experience on two wheels was on a motor bike, and that ended in a nasty crash at the age of 17, that left him with a broken ankle and limited movement in the joint to this day. However, he didn't settle for a straight line those points. He looked for other places he could aim for. He chose the easternmost point, the westernmost, the furthest from the sea, and even the highest point! In the end, he criss-crossed the UK so much that the ride totalled more than 1,500 miles and raised more than £8,000 for the road safety charity Brake.

It was two years in the planning so Graham was 62 when he set out to cycle 50 miles every day, over 35 days, starting from Dunnet Head. via John O'Groats and to to Land's End – with a multitude of diversions.

Graham told The GEM: "I started my training on an exercise bike, and it was September 2012 before I took a bike out on the road.

then. "Even weather was so bad over the winter and spring that I really didn't do that much out of doors."

However, he must have worked hard on that exercise bike, because by the starting bike, date, he had reduced his weight to 17 stone – a great improvement but still not the ideal cycling build! Nevertheless, it was all down to Graham when he started in the far north of Scotland. Road Safety Support Limited, a not profit organisation, who work with ACPO, provided a support vehicle throughout the five weeks of the challenge but Graham had to do all the ped-

He told The GEM: "In many ways Scotland was the best – and the

There were beautiful days riding through wonderful scenery, but it also included my two worst days."

This was due to Graham's determination to reach the highest point in Britain - Ben Nevis of course. It was not bike terrain, so he had to climb to the top, which was tiring enough, but he had an unexpected problem coming down!

He said: "My ankle injury meant that it was really painful coming down. The ankle didn't flex for walking downhill - and I really struggled on that problem.

Worse was to come on the following day, because he had to cycle from Fort William at sea level, up Glen Coe and across Rannoch Moor, including 2,493ft of climbing. He said: "After 10.5

hours the previous day 'The Ben', I could hardly stand up and the following morning I had to stand on a step just to get onto my cycle.

"It was very tough, especially when you're totally exhausted at the start of a 50-mile day."
There were other tough times too, and in the final week of his ride, through Cornwall, general wear and tear and an "endless amount of hills" were a real

Keeping Graham going through the tough times was his determination to help his charity, BRAKE

He said: "Road safety charities don't get much publicity, and after hear- lous, I would leave the around me, only to turn ing what wonderful work BRAKE does in promoting road safety and in the support of victims and relatives of victims of road collisions, they seemed to me to be an obvious choice."

with a great deal of sympathy for cyclists. He said: "I tried to avoid causing any congestion behind me by using the paths/lanes if cycle available.

saying that "In though, on some of the paths it was impossible to cycle, due to the poorly maintained surface or vegetation growing over it and I had to resort to getting back onto the carriageway.

"Some cycle paths I came across were ridicurous, I would leave the carriageway and within less than 100 yards would be confronted with an 'End of Cycle Route' sign – which meant having to reion meant having to rejoin the carriageway again.

"I obeyed all the traftoice."

The trip left Graham ith a great deal of symthy for cyclists. He into the junction. It's no wonder that cyclists get a bad reputation."

He continued: "The vast majority of motor vehicles made allowances for me on my cycle but a small percentage didn't.

"In some cases I felt that I could have cleaned their nearside window with my elbow as they passed. and on a few occasions I had to brake hard as they came

"Other road users need to understand that a strong gusty side wind, while not affecting a motor car, will have quite an effect on a cyclist, just as a small pothole could easily dismount a cyclist but not be felt in a car.

"It's impossible to just cycle a straight line because of these.

However, the experience has left Graham with an appreciation of the joys of cycling, and he is planning to contin-ued taking leisurely ued taking leisurel rides around the vale as soon as his knee, which played up towards the end of the five weeks, is fully recovered for road safety stems from working for Serco for 24 years, and he strongly believes that the company's main product makes a huge difference to road safety.

That product - and at this point there is a chance that one or two readers may turn against Graham – is speed cameras!

Local historian publishes his second novel

Dr Jonathan Hicks, headteacher of St Cyres School. Penarth, and well-known to GEM readers as a local historian, has published his second novel.

Born in Barry, Dr Hicks received much acclaim for his first novel in the Thomas Oscendale series.

Set during the third year of the First World War, his debut The Dead of Mametz followed Captain Thomas Oscendale's efforts to arrest a murderer amongst the soldiers of the Welsh Division, who were poised to begin their assault on the German-held Mametz from Val Hartrey on 029 2051 3274 or val-The novel paints a vivid picture of life in the trenches, as well as life in the industrial towns of south Wales during the Great War.

Dr Hicks' sequel, Demons Walk Among Us, finds Thomas Oscendale fresh from the horrors of war on the Western Front and on leave in the coastal town of Barry, where he is drawn into the investigation of the savage murder of a war widow.

"Demons Walk Among Us is set one year on from the first novel in the series explained Dr Hicks.

"As 2014 marks 100 years since the outbreak of the First World War, there has been a burgeoning of interest in its history and I truly believe that a novel focused around a central character set in this time period will attract widespread interest. Crime novels set in the Great War are something of a rarity."

As well as a writer of fiction, Dr Hicks is also the author of four books on military history.

He won the Victorian Military Society's top award for an article from his first book, A Solemn Mockery in 2006, and was awarded the Western Front Association Shield in 2010 for an illustrated account of his hometown's military past. Barry and the Great

Out and About with The GEM

World's End a fitting finale to comic trilogy

Edgar Wright and Simon Pegg, whose biggest claim to fame was cult sitcom Spaced, released their debut film, Shaun of the Dead, in 2004, nobody could have predicted the huge success the film would generate, with Pegg going on to provide comedic support in the likes of Mission: Impossible 3 and Star Trek, while Wright became a Hollywood director with Scott Pilgrim vs The World.

The second part of their 'Cornetto' trilogy was 2008's Hot Fuzz, bringing them even greater acclaim and success, and the pair close out the trilogy with The World's End.

Pegg plays Gary King, who wants to reunite his old gang of Martin Freeman, Paddy Considine and Eddie Marsan) to complete the 'Golden Mile' pub crawl in their old home town, something that they had failed to do in their youth.

However, as old ten-sions bubble to the surface, the feeling that something isn't quite right in the town esca-lates dramatically, as the five try to reach their final destination – the aptly-named World's End...

Given the amount of success Simon Pegg and Edgar Wright have achieved since Shaun of the Dead, you would have thought they would have been far too busy to knock out another homegrown comedy effort, and, if they could find the time to, the ensuing film would no doubt be compromised by their outside, and far more lucrative interests.

However, the pair have never been ones to shy away from giving their fans what they want, and The World's End makes a fitting finale to their trilogy the film packed with OCEAN LOUNGE laughs but with a mature outlook that reflects on youth mis-spent and how we change, but coupled to an Invasion of the Bodysnatchers-esque plot that doesn't prove to be a step too far. Their previous films have always matched high-concept with the grounded, and The World's End hits a similar vein, the science fic-tion backdrop playing a supporting role to the themes of friendship – and how life doesn't always give you everything you wanted or

In the lead, Pegg hits the same comedy notes you would expect, but matches the depth that his and Wright's script aims for, a performance highly comedic but always hinting at the sadness lurking below. His sidekick, Nick

Frost, has always played the buffoon to Pegg's straighter character, but here the roles are reversed (for the first hour at least). It makes for a refreshing change of pace seeing the dynamic switch, while Freeman, Paddy Considine and Eddie Marsan are pitch-perfect alongside them.

With old faces from their previous films and Spaced popping up, it's easy to sense this is a line being drawn by the pair, and it is a fine note to go out on, if that is the case - with Wright's direction, all verve, fastcuts and clever visual tics – brimming with invention yet showing a degree of restraint.

There is nothing here that doesn't hit the spot if you're a fan of the pair's work, but those who are not won't be converted by the end credits, while even their most ardent admirers may be a little disappointed at the way the climax peters out rather than ends with a bang.

However, The World's End is a likeable, funny film that makes for an entertaining experience. VERDICT: Simon

Pegg and Edgar Wright's 'Cornetto' trilogy is 'topped' off nice-ly (I couldn't resist) with The World's End, a funny film that manages to balance laughter with pathos and body-snatching! With a well-tuned cast, and Wright's strong direction, the film is well worth a ROCK Choir members from Cardiff, Penarth, Bridgend, Cowbridge, Pontyclun Neath, enjoyed their biggest 'gig' they vet, when joined more than fellow 12,000 Rockies' at London's 02 Arena.

Rock Choir is the UK's largest and most popular contemporary choir, with more than 16,000 members in over 250 compunities

250 communities. Founder and director Caroline Redman Lusher and 60 Rock Choir leaders who run weekly singing sessions across the UK were on stage to perform with the choir.

Local Rock Choir leaders Stephanie Bailey and Katie Thomas said: "We worked really hard rehearsing for this fantastic event and it was all worth it. I'm so proud of everyone and great to see our flags and panners flying.

"Being able to sing with thousands of other Rock Choir members in such a huge and iconic arena was hugely uplifting and inspiring. The sound was just incredible.'

A poignant moment came when Sarah Godwin, whose son Quentin went missing 21 years ago, talked about her search for him.

She told the packed arena how with the support of Rock Choir, the charity Missing People had offered a lifeline to her and her family.

New priest Melanie sports red!

MANCHESTERborn Melanie Prince has taken over as priest-incharge at Porthkerry and Rhoose from Rev David Treharne, who has moved to Tidenham (St Mary) with Beachley and Lancaut in the diocese of Gloucester.

Melanie was licensed in a special service at St Peter's Church, Rhoose, by the Assistant Bishop of Llandaff David minister and switched courses from ancient history and archaeology to theology.

"I was the first person from my family to go to university and growing up on a council estate in Manchester meant that I thought being a vicar was something that old, posh blokes did!" said Melanie.
"I thought vicars were nice and they weren't distant to me, I went to Sunday school and church youth groups, but it just was-n't something that I thought someone like me would do."

The lifelong Manchester United fan and Star Trek enthusiast moves to the parish of Porthkerry and Rhoose from Llantwit Major, where she was team vicar for five years. Prior to that she was curate at Gabalfa for seven years, and before that she was curate at Aberavon for three years.

When Melanie isn't wearing her dog collar, she might well be wear ing her Star Trek outfit as she attends conventions around the country with her husband Darren (44), a university lecturer and their two daughters Hannah (12), and Naomi (eight).

Melanie is now looking forward to getting to know her new parish-ioners: "My main plan is to get to know our new church family and to work out the way forward together. I am not coming here with any preconceived ideas of what I am going to do – we will work it out together."

She will serve at St Curig's Church in Porthkerry and St Peter's in Rhoose.

Melanie will also work closely with Archdeacon Peggy Jackson, priest in charge of the neighbouring parish of Penmark with Llancarfan and Llantrithyd in a cluster arrangement.

This follows recommendations from the Church in Wales review, with the two parishes now sharing and rationalising resources for their mutual benefit.

The area was once medieval farm-land but because underlying natural springs kept the land wet and boggy, growing crops was not easy. Between the 1890s and 1970, Cosmeston was a commercial limestone quarry serving the concrete factory where the Schooner stands; but the area con-stantly had to be pumped dry and following the factory closure and the pub being built, the pumping stopped.

It is classed as the most southerly point of Wales and is steeped in historical artifacts Flat Holm became a fortified island in 1869, after a visit from Queen Victoria and Prince Albert. Batteries and stone barracks (to sleep up to 50 men) were erected to protect Bristol and Cardiff from the French Navy.

Flat Holm played its own unique part during World War Two, when 350 soldiers from the Royal Artillery were stationed on the island. To accommodate them, a radar station was built, and Flat Holm became an armed island for defence against the enemy with four small guns, searchlights and two bofor guns. The separate defences included Castle Rock Battery, Farm House Battery, Well Battery and Lighthouse Battery, which ran from the northern to country, which ran from the northern to southern points of the island for pro-

After the war, the works became redundant and were left to nature, although the helipad still remains at the island's core

Also on the island are the remains of the Cholera Hospital, built in 1883, after three seamen from the steamship Rishumglys were abandoned on the island, because they were thought to contracted Unfortunately, one of them later died.

They were given a canvas tent for shelter, a dubious means of accommodation on such an open and vulnerable island, prone to extreme weather and high winds.

The residents were outraged by this 'invasion', and lobbied Cardiff Council for compensation. They claimed that the presence of disease damaged their livelihoods and deterred people from visiting the island.

In 1896, the Marquis of Bute, who owned the island, agreed to lease the remaining land to Cardiff Corporation for £50 a year. They proceeded to build a solid isolation unit on the land unoccupied by the lighthouse and military, to keep this disease at bay.

It contained two six-bed wards and a

In 1893, three more sailors were island.

The last person to die in the hospital was a victim of the bubonic plague, and was cremated and buried on the island in the late 19th Century.

The Grade II listed Victorian hospital, as well as the laundry block, closed in 1935. They remain derelict and on the Buildings at Risk Register to this day.

The eerie sight of a long-forgotten sailor seems to roam the cliffs of the island as if in search of his lost ship. Where could this sailor have come from, and why would he want to remain in an area far beyond his superficial world?

The creepy corridor of the ruined hospital seems to echo the footsteps of a deceased person, yet no physical body is performing these reverbera-tions. Could the people of yesteryear be trying to urgently remind the living of the perils of disease?

The spectral image of a seemingly distressed nurse wearing an old fashioned uniform and headdress, seems to wander through the ruined walls of the old hospital.

Could this ghostly being be forlorn because her place of work is no longer in use, or just a restless soul vying to be remembered?

Chilling shouts for help have been heard from the raging sea at the dead of night, yet no physical person is ever seen in danger. Could the people from a bygone era be unknowingly causing panic amongst the living who mistak enly believe that somebody is drowning at such an untimely hour?

The phantom sight of a distinguished looking man has been wit-nessed patrolling around the Canon and Moncrieff Pit near the lighthouse.

Strange lights have also been seen here, and the chilling feeling of being watched by unseen eyes.

A clean sweep for the enchanting village of Gileston!

Glamorgan Best Kept Village competition is 60 years old this year, and after a busy cou-ple of weeks of judging, the winners were announced at a special awards evening in Ystradowen Village Hall.

There were whoops of delight as the chief judge announced that Gileston had swept to victory. Mrs Rosamund Davies said: "Gileston is a most enchanting village which gives you a lovely welcome with the signposts being underplanted with roses at both ends of the village. You immediately felt you wanted prizes for the special village feature each had entered. Wenvoe is developing a Welsh orchard with a special-ist herb garden, using the types of herbs that were used by the physicians of Myddfai.

Gileston has decorated two derelict buildings with flowers, to add to the beauty of the centre of the village.

The committee chairman, Irena Wasilewska, stressed the debt of gratitude that is owed to sponsors over the years. She thanked current sponsors - Vale of Glamorgan Council, community and town councils, Cowbridge Compost, LGA Birkett, AG Adams, The National Trust at Dyffryn Gardens, and Ffos Las Racecourse

She also thanked the supporters who regularly help with the awards evening, and those who donated raffle prizes, including a gift from Leekes.

Second prize -Llanmaes, Jackie Simpson.

Third prize -Wenvoe, Phil

Fourth prize Pendoylan, Judith Roberts.

Arctic Star update

THE Bridgend MP, Madeleine Moon, has warned that next-of-kin applications for the Arctic Star will not be processed until September.

Mrs Moon said she was informed of the September processing date in a reply to a par-liamentary question.

A constituent had approached her about the time it would take for applications to be processed. The Arctic Star has been issued in recognition of service on the Arctic convoys dur-ing World War Two.

The MP pointed out: "Quite rightly, applica-tions from surviving veterans are being prioriised. The Ministry of Defence aims to process these applications within two months. Next of kin will start being processed in September. o if your application falls into this category, it will be several months before you hear any-asses well supported at Llancarfan Show

AFTER a one-year break and a few months of planning, the 2013 Llancarfan village show was staged on July 13 in Llancarfan Village Hall, St Cadoc's church, a marquee erected behind the hall, and four smaller gaze-

Two of the gazebos were used to promote the Llancarfan Community Cinema run by Jim Barratt which has just finished its first successful Barratt which has just finished its first successful season, another housed the Llancarfan Society plant stall run by Kay and Lucy Brain, and the remaining gazebo was used to provide fun and games for the younger visitors which was organised and run by Jane Williams.

Unfortunately, the number of entries in the fruit and vegetable classes was down on the previous show in 2011, but this was due to the very poor weather experienced at the start of the year, with the growing season slipning a good six with the growing season slipping a good six weeks.

However, despite this, most other classes were well supported and by 10:30am all entries were in their places around the show site, awaiting the judges' decisions.

The panel of judges patiently examined and /or tasted all the entries and winners and runners-up in each of the classes were decided.

Prior to the show opening to the public, the judges and stewards were treated to an excellent lunch in the village hall which had been prepared by Melinda Thomas and her mum Sandra who made the most wonderfully light coffee cake

With the fantastic weather, many residents from the village and surrounding areas attended and enjoyed the village event.

Alun Cairns, MP for the Vale, once again attended and together with Jim Barratt, the vice chair of the Llancarfan Society, presented the cups to the overall winners.

The village show, again was a huge success and this would not have been possible without the chair of show Sue Taylor and the show committee, but special thanks must go to Anne Ferris the show secretary for the meticulous planning and organisation who was presented with a beautiful bunch of flowers by Alun Cairns, in recognition of her outstanding effort.

Barry Town United | Young athletes excel start pre-season with two wins

BARRY Town United began their pre season campaign with a 1-0 win at Moreton Rangers in the Cotswolds.

In spite of the turbulent events of the summer, Barry were able to field no fewer than 10 men who played in last season's Welsh Cup semi-final against Prestatyn Town; among them forward Ryan Jenkins, midfielders Michael Hartley and James Saddler and defender Lee Baldock.

Played in near-unbearable heat, the match was nonetheless an entertaining one; Barry showing great appetite and playing some good football, in front of a sun-kissed crowd.

The difference was made shortly after the break, when defender Lewis Grant found himself in a forward position and deftly beat the Moreton goalkeeper with an intelligent, right-footed finish.

With Barry remaining organised in spite of the energy-sapping heat and stand-in goalkeeper Louie Barnfather doing enough to repel each Moreton attack, the 1-0 lead was maintained and Barry earned a first victory of the season, to the delight of their long-suffering travelling support-

After the match, fans and players alike received words of encouragement from Moreton manager, and former Barry Town boss, Gary

Barnett expressed his hope that his current side would be able to come to Jenner Park next season, in order to continue the relationship between

BARRY TOWN UNITED 5

On Saturday, Gavin Chesterfield took his Barry side to Tiverton. Devon for the second successive Goalkeeper Dan Bradley returned to the start-ing line-up, with another long-time servant in Lewis Cosslett and evergreen veteran Damon Searle adding to a formidable Barry defence.

Meanwhile, there were debut appearances for Keir McInery (nephew of club historian Jeff McInery), Daniel Bell (brother of former Golden Boot winner Josh Bell) and Bradley O' Loughlin each a product of the team's youth development

Continuing where they left off the previous weekend, Barry played some smart football in the first half, and looked clinical in the all-important final third.

The opener came when forward Jordan Cotterill broke away from a defender and lifted the ball over the goalkeeper and into the net from Cotterill would double his tally minutes later apitalising on a sublime dummy by winger Dale Howarth and delivering another ruthless finish.

Strike partner TJ Nagi then got in on the act receiving Cotterill's pass and cutting inside, eluding defenders, he fired into the bottom left-hand corner from the space he created.

After the interval, Barry continued to press for goals; McInery going agonisingly close with his very first touch.

Another homegrown talent, Thomas Case would join the fray, making the day a family affair, with father Matthew as outstanding as ever in his role amongst the team's backroom staff.

The young Barry players integrated well with their more-experienced counterparts; a positive sign for the future, should a future for the team be permitted.

It was however two of last season's favourites who boosted Barry's goal tally to a famous five. Howarth, chasing an apparent lost cause, bat-tled his way to Barry's fourth, bamboozling the Elmore goalkeeper and scoring from close range.

It was then left to Grant to cap another encouraging display with his second in as many outings. Grant finished emphatically, and while Elmore would snag a late consolation, it would not tarnish a grand day out for the Barry players, staff and supporters.

This display was less about horses, and more about dalmations!

RIGHT:

WHAT a lovely sunny day it turned out to be for the young people at Talygan recently, when they performed their displays to around 360 friends, family and spectators.

The displays started with a mini-major jumping competition in which an older and a younger rider

The competition was won by Malissa Yates, 16, of Pontyclun and Olivia Murray, 11, from Pontypridd. It was followed by several vaulting displays including a performance by 101 Dalmations, The Lion King, Red Indians, and a canter performance by the A Squad.

The Musical Ride performed to a selection of ABBA songs and the day ended with a fast and fun display of gymkhana skills.

The Vaulters are a club based at Talygarn and money raised will go towards more catsuits for the squads and towards funding the cost of entering teams at the British Championships at Leighton Buzzard Jane Hutt presents John Hasting with a certificate of appreciation for his tuition.

THE Vale AM, Jane Hutt presented certificates at the end of a golfing course for children and adults with disabilities from Special Olympics Cardiff & Vale Golf Group.

The group,working in artnership with Golf Development Wales and Disability Sport Wales, held a 12-week golf tuition course for children and adults with disabilities at St Andrews Major Golf Club, with tuition by golf professional John Hasting.

The group will continue to meet every Friday at the golf course, it is hoped to run further courses in the future.

During the evening, the group was also presented with an Insport certificate by Disability Sport Wales

Barry Town United invited to coach future soccer stars

THE Vale Council has demonstrated its "commitment to local football" by inviting Barry Town United Football Club to run the Vale of Glamorgan football centre of development.

A spokesperson explained that the move aims to increase the club's presence in the community and to pro-vide opportunities for talented young players.

As well as providing a direct link with the community, the club has plans for a fully functioning training academy in the future, which is likely to be a require-ment as they seek to gain promotion to the Welsh Premier League

The present centre would be an ideal starting point for such an academy.
The Vale of

Glamorgan football cen-tre of development has operated for approximately 10 years, and has provided quality coaching for talented young footballers, both boys and girls.

It has previously been operated directly by the council's sports development team. However, an internal review of the centre has shown that numbers have dropped and that there are now several commercial competitors offering similar opportunities across south Wales.

One of the main rea-sons for the reduction in numbers has been the lack of progression opportunities for talented players. Coun Gwyn John, cabinet member for leisure, parks, culture and sport development, said: "It is vital that we raise the standards of football coaching available to young people in the Vale of Glamorgan and support the star players of the future. "This agreement with

Barry Town United Football Club also demonstrates our unflinching support of the club itself, following the FAW's devastating decision to deny the club full membership.

"We are confident that the Vale of Glamorgan football centre of devel-opment will thrive under the guidance of the club and we encourage young people in the Vale to get involved in local foot-ball."

VALE GOLF ACADEMY: Father and son team up!

A LOCAL golfer has shunned the life of a tournament professional - to follow in his father's footsteps and become a teaching pro at the Vale Resort Golf Academy, near Hensol in the Vale.

Matthew Coombs (22), who qualified last month with a degree in applied golf management from Birmingham University, joins father Clive as part of the four-strong coaching set-up at the Resort, which gives individual and group lessons to members and non-members of all ages from across south Wales.

The Junior Academy at the Vale has produced a number of young golfing stars in recent years, including current European Amateur Championship Cup winner and 2013 Open qualifier Rhys Pugh.

Matthew is looking forward to getting stuck into his new role as a full-time teaching pro and putting some of his studies into practice: "The PGA degree course has been a fantastic experience for me and has really launched my career as a teaching pro," he said.

"The Vale Resort already has a great reputation for coaching juniors but we are always looking to develop new programmes that are tailored to different types of golfers, from complete beginners to ladies, or even experienced players that want to improve certain areas of their game.
"We have also worked with some fantastic groups of disabled golfers, and that is one part of the job that really excites me

CADOXTON 'A' V LLANTRISANT 'A' The visit to Lantrisant brought team's defence of little joy for Cadoxton 'A' side, in a ML6 match.

Jim Davies skipped the only successful rink. They recovered from a '3' against on the first end to lead throughout the game; they even had the luxury of losing the last two ends with a '2' and a '4' and still winning comfortably.

Alan Carpenter's rink won the first two ends, but there was no further core, in their favour for the following nine ends, which left them 16-3 down. They retaliated during the remainder of the match, and the revival was not quite enough, ending just three behind.
